Subject: SMMUSD to start truancy proceedings against a first grader

Jeff:

Would you Please read the following email and help us out with your considerate advice. It is from Sandra Lyon to a parent of a first grader. This parent has refused to allow her daughter into room 19 or the other rooms in the building that both tested high for caulking at 340,000 ppm as well as over 100 ng for air sampling even after the cleaning. Her daughter is either 5 1/2 or six years old.

Lyon and the district are pointing the fingers at the EPA saying that you all say the room is safe for this child to go into and therefore the district is going to start truancy proceedings to expel this child because a parent refuses to let her daughter go into the classroom for that one class a day.

I would like to discuss this with you in Monday. I am quite sure that the EPA had no intention of giving the district cover to allow them to go after a first grader like this. I am respectfully asking for your help and advice to figure out what to do from here.

Respectfully,
Jennifer
